York Carers Centre helps unpaid carers in York find the support they need

What is a carer?

Carers provide regular, unpaid help to someone close to them due to frailty, physical or mental illness, addiction or disability.

Carers may help with personal care (washing, bathing, dressing, feeding), medication, cooking, shopping, housework and giving emotional support.

Many people do not recognise themselves as carers. Carers can be any age. They are parents, grandparents, children, partners, friends or neighbours doing what needs to be done to maintain the quality of life for someone close to them. They may not realise that support is available to help them.

York Carers Centre

We give free help to carers living, or caring for someone who lives, in York. Support can be given over the phone, at the office, or we can arrange to see carers at home or in another suitable place.
